

Budget-Friendly Classroom

What are your specific needs?

Start out by noting how much your provided budget is each year, when supply orders should be placed, and through what vendors.

Many times, extra funds are needed in order to afford new classroom sets, better supplies, or art room furniture such as drying racks, carts, glazes, storage containers, etc.

Keep a log of what you order year over year so you can find the right amount of paper to order to meet your needs, paint, glue, etc.

A document camera is a great investment with extra funds!

Have a technology liaison help to setup the camera with your computer and projector. This allows you to demonstrate many processes or steps from your desk area onto the big screen. Students get a better view, they can work alongside you at their own workspace, and aren't as distracted gathering around a crowded table. It really is a great asset to the art room!

Art to Remember is a great partnership to provide extra funding while also advocating for your art program. It helps to build a community of support among your families as well. This program is a great self-esteem boost for artists, and a highlight to the art room.

No more door to door sales or calling parents, we offer a totally art-based way to give back to your classroom. Parents and kids love it!
